At SimplePractice, we spend a lot of time coming up with ways to make the lives of clinicians better. One thing we hear frequently is how billing can create anxiety and uncertainty for our customers. Figuring out when and how to bill, choosing what tools to use and tracking your payments all require careful consideration.

Many of our customers say they want to do billing more efficiently but don't know where to start. For too many it's a process to dread—but it is a necessity if you want to get paid.

In response, we've created a comprehensive and easy-to-understand guide to help clinicians who may not like the billing process — or those who don't mind billing but feel they could do it more efficiently.

Our guide only takes about 15 minutes to read, and shows you the steps to develop your own personalized and easy-to-maintain billing system. You'll learn how to create a frictionless routine to help you get paid more quickly, improve financial transparency, easily view your income stream, and most importantly, give you peace of mind — and who doesn't need more of that in their lives?
