

The Best Ways to Stay Healthy This Summer

written by CPH Insurance | June 17, 2016

It's a hot summer – and nothing is more annoying than being unable to breathe when temperatures range from 80-100+ degrees! Most Americans do not eat enough fruits and vegetables – however, staying healthy hinges on more than just eating good greens, but eating them when they are full of nutrients. Did you know that in season fruits and vegetables are more nutrient-dense than those imported or out of season domestic products?

Scientific studies also show two major benefits of eating in season fresh foods:

1. Naturally consume higher amounts of antioxidants
2. Reap greater benefits for your body's detoxifying systems.

There are many benefits to eating fresh produce seasonally. You support your local economy, helping farmers and markets in the area. You also help reduce the carbon footprint since the food is not transported as far!

Also, local produce has fewer premiums are placed on it. You can save money eating more healthy food!

Stay in season, friends. Make these top 7 summer foods a part of a diet that will keep your body flourishing and your mind sharp!
